The Mystery of a Deadly Attack Solved by a Newspaper Paragraph.

[Boston Herald.] "How are Americans liked in England?" And Mr. B. F. Larrabee, of 42 Cher ter Square, ex-director of the New York and Boston Dispatch Express Company, who has recently returned from a considerable residence in London, answered: "If they have good recommendations and behave themselves they are well treated; but they will like the English people, any way, when acquaintane ripens into confidence.' "How do the English compare with Americans?" "The finest looking men in the world can be seen on pleasant days of the London season, promenading Piccadilly. The English ladies, however, are neither so neat in appearance nor so graceful of form and movement as the Americans, but they seem to enjoy more robust health.

"Are English people longer lived than our people? "I don't know. I have not fully investigated. But I remember once hearmg read a newspaper paragraph entitled 'Why do Englishmen live longer than Americans?' That paragraph, by the way, once solved a great mystery or two.

KENO.

The latest news around the town, Hut I suppose you know That Al and Tem's at Congress Hall With the favorite game, Kepo,

Their urn and cards and checks are new, And everything next and clean, So drop in to-night and play a card, And I know you'll call again. Tom, he will man the wheel, And plainly call the ball;

And Al, he'll mak s himself useful Collecting exreis around the hall. There'll be no chance for a kick, The pool is always correct, And everything will run so smooth, With Al and Tom on deck.

There's no one staked to play a card. To all it's plainly seen, And when a man pegs a card He'll have to put up his bean To all they give an equal show, It can be seen at a glance.

So, if you would Keno play, Give Al and Tem a chance. MISCELLANEOUS
